Extension of Park Along Indian Creek Urged Before Council by Rick Meetre

by Pat Scully

At its November 13 meeting, city council heard a multimedia presentation from Rick Meetre in which he petitioned council to actively support inclusion of parkland along Indian Creek into planning for the transit district overlay zone from Greenbelt Road north to the Metro rail station. A river park would offer open space, wetland preservation and water quality benefits, Meetre noted.

In his petition he noted strong support for the concept by the North College Park Civic Association, the Sierra Club, the College Park Area Bicycle Coalition, the town of Berwyn Heights and others. This park could eventually extend from the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center (BARC) and the Patuxent Wildlife Center to Union Station, said Meetre, who noted that the Governor's Greenways Commission is working on such a plan.

Mayor Gil Weidenfeld said that the Park and Planning Commission will be looking for Greenbelt's input and that the city will have ample opportunity. See INDIAN CREEK, page 6

BRIGHT LIGHTS SAFE HOLIDAY

Festive lights and decorations, when used properly and with caution, make the holiday season more enjoyable. BG&E's Fire Protection Technician Nick Weiland offers some tips on how to avoid fires resulting from holiday lighting, greenery and wrappings.

—Purchase lights that are U/L approved and check annually for frayed or exposed wiring, broken bulbs or sockets and loose connections. Fasten light strings securely to the tree and don't let the bulbs touch branches or needles.

—Don't use indoor lights outside. Hang outdoor lights with insulated staples and Christmas light hooks, not nails or tacks. Hang bulbs downward to keep moisture out of sockets.

—Never use electric lights on a metallic tree. Damaged light strings can electrically charge the tree. Lights are safe on a U/L approved plastic tree made of fire resistant material.

—Don't overload extension cords or wall outlets. Don't run electrical cords under carpets, cushions or anywhere they might be easily crushed or broken.

Do not burn wrapping paper and boxes in the fireplace. They ignite rapidly and can cause flash fires and create sparks that could ignite nearby combustibles.

—Keep a U/L-listed multipurpose fire extinguisher nearby but people should only attempt to use it if they know how to operate it and if the fire is small. If a fire is out of control, evacuate the house immediately and call the fire department. A Christmas tree can be completely consumed by fire in less than 30 seconds.

Unplug all lighting when leaving the house or at bedtime.

THEATER TO REOPEN CHRISTMAS, BOASTS NEW SOUND SYSTEM

by Eileen Peterson

The marquee of the country's first cooperative motion picture theater will light up again in the center of Greenbelt on Christmas Day, as the Old Greenbelt Theater opens as a discount-price movie house.

The picture "Ghost" is the first attraction (see ad elsewhere), and this seems an appropriate title to grace the front of a building which opened in 1938 but which for the past 30 months has been a dark shell.

Workmen have redecorated the interior with blue and beige wall fabric and a purple and multi-colored carpet, and 500 beige and purple seats have been installed (the same number as in the original theater). The movie screen is 40 feet wide, 10 feet wider than the original screen. A new boiler, to be installed before Christmas Day, will keep the theater comfortably warm.

"We have installed a top-of-the-line sound system," explains proprietor Paul Sanchez, "which includes 300-watt amplifiers powering giant JBL speakers to produce Dolby Sound (surround sound). The speakers even have sub-woofers."

A form of "ghost" appeared during redecorating. While pulling off a broken piece of trim behind the old concession stand in the lobby, Sanchez drew out a partial page from the November 29, 1937 issue of the Washington Times Herald newspaper. Probably stuffed in to fill a crack, the half-sheet makes fascinating reading. On one side is the then-current Movie Guide, showing that at the Loew's Theater in Washington, D.C. one could see Tyrone Power in "Second Honeymoon." On the back of the page, a house on Flower Avenue in Silver Spring was on sale for $4,975, and a 1936 Chevrolet could be bought for under $500.

Smith, Retiring Public Works Director, Honored by Staff

By Sandra Barnes

George Smith, Greenbelt's Director of Public Works for twelve years, is retiring in January. City staff honored Smith at a retirement dinner on December 9, at the American Legion.

Smith took over during the boom years of the 1980s. His principal achievements include the modernization of the city's fleet of vehicles as well as the computerization of many public works functions. He helped the department grow to a staff of 40 permanent, well-trained employees.

Accomplishments

City Manager James Giese credits Smith with undertaking a number of tasks not normally performed by a public works department. These include landscaping at the new police station, and street reconstruction projects. Most cities rely on contractors to perform street work, but Smith's engineering knowledge permitted the city to perform more than half of the street work.

Smith is most proud of his accomplishments in utilization of computers to track gas mileage and maintenance of city vehicles, as well as all service and complaint calls. He is also intensely proud of the "good training program" in the city. He credits city manager James Giese for fostering the training of individuals at all levels of city employment.

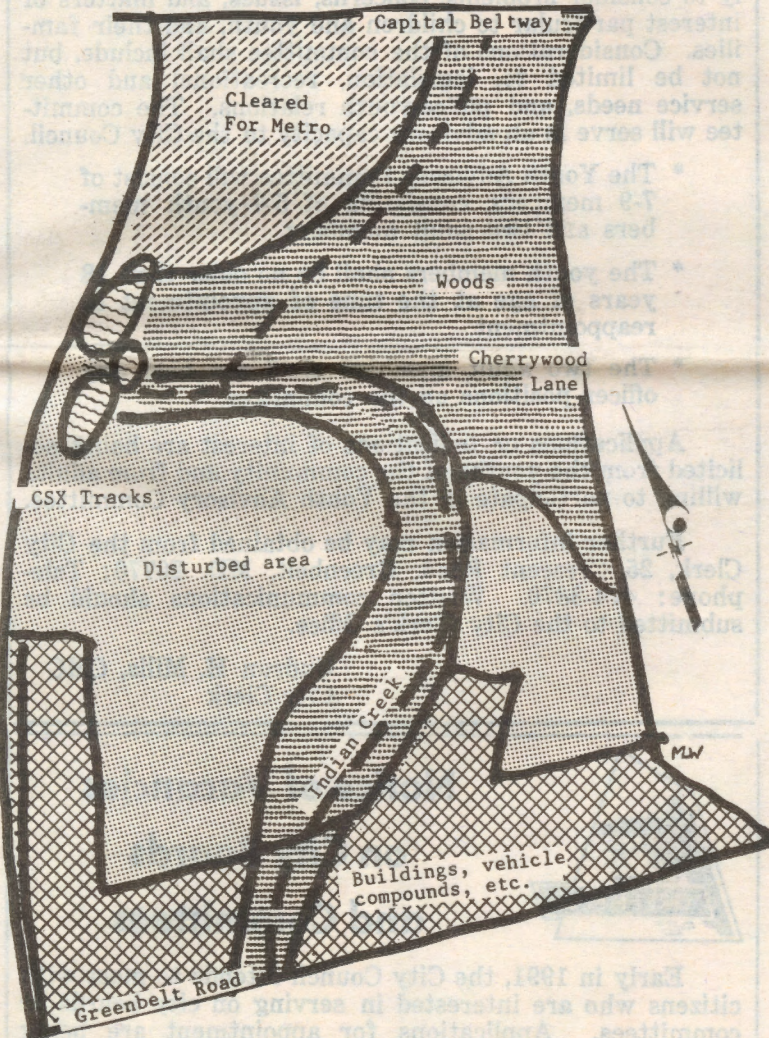

Employee Advancement

To illustrate his point, Smith related that one employee, Jim Sterling, began his career with

The above drawing shows the course of Indian Creek (dotted line) as it travels south from the Capital Beltway to Greenbelt Road surrounded by woods. The drawing is based on the photograph by Rodney Roberts that was shown to the city council.

The master planning for the transit district overlay zone will take place in early 1991. The process is expected to take around six months.

Parkland Video

Meetre showed a videotape he had made in the River Park along Indian Creek south of Greenbelt Road, which under his proposal would be extended north to the Metro station. The video featured bikers, joggers and strollers enjoying a clear fall day. A path beside a briskly flowing stream wound between trees bright with autumn foliage. Make sure a park is part of the plan for the Greenbelt transit district, Meetre urged.

the Beltway showed clearly the contrast between the adjacent uses and the strip of stream bank proposed for parkland. To the west lies the A. H. Smith gravel operation; to the east, Beltway Plaza. The photograph, taken from a helicopter, was shot by Rodney Roberts.

Council Response

Meetre was proposing that the park be part of the County and Maryland-National Capital Park & Planning Commission system, not that the city acquire it. He was looking for support from city council for the planning and zoning designation, which is determined by the county council, rather than for

A Special Thank You

To the Editor:

On behalf of myself and the entire Reynolds family, I would like to thank all our great friends and neighbors for their prayers, kindness, and support during my husband's illness and untimely passing.

A very special thank you to the Greenbelt Fire Department, Greenbelt Police Department, American Legion Post 136, Berwyn Heights Fire Department, Pat, Bill, Nancy, Jay, Henry, Betty, Jack and Maria. Without your help, support, and outpouring of love, I never could have survived these most difficult days. Each of you is so special.

There are so many wonderful memories of Jack. His beautiful smile, infectious laugh, sense of humor, love of his days as a police officer, family, friends, and golf. He made such a great contribution and difference to our lives. May Jack always be remembered in our hearts.

Kathy Reynolds

THANKS

To the Editor:

Robert B. Siehl and family would like to personally thank the St. Hugh's Church and Greenbelt Lions Club for their help and support during our mother's illness. A very special thank you to Dan Dambrauskas, Charles Mills, Pete Labukas and George Loutsch for providing transportation to the hospital for our father.

The Siehl's

Concerns Remain

To the Editor:

The News Review's December article on the November 29 meeting on the proposed Center School community center failed to do justice to the concerns of a number of citizens who spoke about the Center's possible traffic and parking impact.

The article glossed over these concerns in one paragraph, which neglected to even mention traffic impact. Also, none of the citizens who raised these concerns was identified in the article. For instance, Jan Berdeguez, who gave a thoughtful presentation about preserving trees and green space on the site, was not mentioned by name. Yet citizens who raised other, less controversial topics — such as the proposed use of the gym for flying rubber band powered airplanes — were identified by name, and their ideas were given significantly longer and more detailed coverage. (The article even attributed feelings of "intrigue" to the audience in response to the airplane proposal.)

The News Review earlier suppressed Community Center traffic and parking issues when my wife, Ruth Kastner, tried to raise them prior to the June 1989 bond referendum. When the city would not substantiate its published traffic figures, the News Review defended the city's refusal to give Ms. Kastner this information. The News Review also refused to publish a letter from her that presented facts and figures (obtained from official Park and Planning sources) that contradicted the city's very modest traffic projection.

Moreover, in the months leading up to the referendum, the News Review defended the city's low traffic projection both implicitly in its news coverage and explicitly in an editor's note appended to a later letter to the editor from Ms. Kastner. In fact, the city eventually retracted its original low projection at a City Council meeting, replacing it with a projection that basically agreed with Ms. Kastner's estimate. But the News Review neglected to report this in its coverage of that meeting.

Traffic and parking concerns still remain, despite the rosy picture painted by the News Review.

Charles P. Hagelgans
Editor's Note: Because our reporters did not recall that "the city eventually retracted its original low projection" of traffic to be generated by the Community Center, this newspaper contacted the city staff for clarification. The newspaper was informed that no retraction was made. A new study will be done, city staff said, when the actual uses for the Community Center are better known.

Generosity Remembered

Dear Friends of Pat Griffin:

I read in the News Review of the death of Pat Griffin. I also read in your article about his life including his career here as a barber. You told of his barbershop being for many years on the second floor above the theater lobby. During those years he was our neighbor just across the hall; and when he moved downstairs to his tiny spot next to High's, he continued being a good neighbor.

I'd like to share with his friends a big story about this gentle man. I was working as a psychologist with a handicapped young man who was very phobic with respect to having his hair cut. I spoke with Pat about this young man and Pat agreed to spend the extra time and effort with my client, my client's mother, and me working on this phobia. This young man's problem was solved largely by Pat's generosity as a caring, humane and gentle person.

I feel privileged that I was able to know such a fine person. Such people are often unnoticed and unappreciated.

THANKS

To the Editor:

I wish to thank the voters of the 23rd Legislative District for re-electing me to serve again in the Maryland Legislature.

Thank you to my Republican opponents, without which there really would not have been a meaningful election.

Thank you to all the volunteers who gave countless hours to phone, stuff envelopes, door-knock and a myriad of other tasks, donating freely and unselfishly of their time to help me in my re-election campaign.

I will do my best to justify the faith and confidence the people of the district have placed in me.

Oil, Kerosene Users Offered Assistance

Local oil heat and kerosene dealers are expressing their concern for those who will need financial assistance to keep warm this winter. They are doing so through their voluntary participation in the Department of Human Resources' Maryland Energy Assistance Program (MEAP).

Numerous members of the Better Home Heat Council, a group of local oil heat dealers, are giving discounts on heating oil and kerosene to Maryland's eligible low income families this heating season.

During the 1990-91 heating season, approximately 80,000 households are expected to receive an average MEAP benefit of $275 to help offset their home heating costs. Last year, MEAP served nearly 76,000 households, providing an average benefit of $265.

Those eligible for heating assistance include: elderly or disabled individuals who live on small incomes; individuals who receive public assistance, supplemental security income or food stamps; underemployed or unemployed individuals; and individuals who receive certain veterans benefits.

Public Works Director Retires

the city right out of high school as a laborer/truck driver. With the city's help, he is working on an engineering degree and has advanced to assist the city planner, Celia Wilson. Giese applauds Smith's desire to help develop and train people to assume greater responsibilities, enabling many persons to advance to positions such as equipment operator, supervisor or foreman. Smith feels that training opportunities are one of the city's employment strengths and a major factor for the city's low turnover rate.

"We don't send them to school," Smith related. "We encourage them if they want to go. And it is very gratifying to see people — like Jim Sterling — develop," he added proudly.

Early Career

Smith had graduated from Michigan State with a degree in public administration.

Following a brief period as an engineer in a private firm, he moved to Virginia where he worked as a city manager in Colonial Heights and Blacksburg. He then moved on to New Jersey — first Mattawan Township and then Middletown, where he was city manager in a city of 50,000.

Smith retired from his position as city manager in New Jersey and applied for the public works director job in Greenbelt in 1978. He had read about Greenbelt while in College. He was pleased to accept a job which did not require him to attend the many public meetings demanded of city managers.

Great Expectations

When he first arrived in Greenbelt, Smith was surprised by the high expectations of city residents. As soon as a call is placed with public works for special trash pick-up, or other service, "residents want it done right away," he commented. "Greenbelt citizens are spoiled," he said, "but we try to do whatever they ask."

His more flamboyant predecessor, Buddy Attick, was an institution in Greenbelt. Not only did he grow up in the area before Greenbelt was even constructed, he worked for the city for over 40 years. As city manager James Giese commented, "Buddy Attick was a very popular person and well-liked by the employees. Although a totally different personality, George Smith earned the respect and loyalty of the public works department employees."

Regrets and Plans

Smith notes that he has been very happy in Greenbelt, and praises the dedication of city employees as well as the city manager. He regrets leaving the many friends he had made over the years, especially in public works and the police department. "It's hard to leave people I'm working with. I like the atmosphere here," he stated. But, he is looking forward to moving to Maitland, Florida, where he and his wife will be near the youngest of their three children.

The City presented Smith with a plaque, and a small television set for the workroom of his new home. Other gifts included a mantle clock from his co-workers and a plaque/wall clock from the police department. Kenny Hall, Smith's assistant, has been appointed acting director of public works.

Local Resident Presented

To Washington Society

Cheryl Lynn Miller, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. C. David Miller of Lakeside Drive, was presented to Washington Society at the National Debutante Cotillion and Thanksgiving Ball.

Starting with a reception on Sunday, November 18, there were luncheons, receptions, dinners and dances through Sunday, November 25.

Miller is the granddaughter of Mrs. Marvin Showalter and the late Mr. Showalter, formerly of Greenbelt, and the goddaughter of Mrs. Eugene Rietzke and the late Mr. Rietzke, founder of Capitol College in Laurel.

She is currently a senior at the University of Florida and a member of Golden Key Honor Society.

We extend sympathy to Martin and Frances Haker and their daughter Mary Virginia Haker on the death of their son and brother, Martin James Haker, Jr. of Chesapeake Beach.

Our condolences to Robert Siehl and family on the recent death of his wife Helen.

Congratulations to Patrick Parsons, son of Mary Parsons of Lakeside Drive, who has qualified for honors at Portsmouth Abbey School in Portsmouth, Rhode Island, where he is a sophomore. Portsmouth Abbey is a college preparatory boarding and day school for grades 9-12. Patrick previously had attended St. Hugh's.

We were happy to receive holiday greetings from Pat and Howard Savage, long-time residents, now living in Spain. And what a difference, Pat says, from living here in the States!

Language is one problem. Pat and Howard get the weekly newspaper delivered to their door, as we do, but in Spanish. Pat says that she feels like a 5-year-old trying to decipher those squiggly things called words.

Economics is another problem. Pat says that prices in Europe are almost double the prices here. Gasoline, for example, is four dollars a gallon in England where their son Tim is an aide to a member of parliament.

Pat is happy, though, to temporarily be back in the States visiting family and, of course, friends in Greenbelt.

From the military comes word that Pvt. 1st Class Andrew E. Cooley, son of James and Brenda Cooley of Lastner Lane, has deployed to the Middle East with American military forces participating in Operation Desert Shield. Cooley is with the 82nd Airborne Division at Fort Bragg, N.C.

Seniors Can Thank Heaven For "Gigi" on January 23

On Wednesday, January 23 the Greenbelt Recreation Department will be taking senior citizens to see "Gigi" at the Harlequin Dinner Theatre. The van will leave from the Youth Center at 10:15 a.m. Any senior citizen interested in attending must sign up at the Youth Center. There is a fee. Tickets are limited and distributed on a first come, first served basis. Call 474-6878 for more information.

Mr. Benjamin H. Dog, ranger of the North Woods, and beloved puppy of Jane Love, 3B Plateau, is recuperating from a pinched nerve. He cannot negotiate stairs or be walked for awhile but can be visited and lightly petted whenever the Christmas lights are on, according to Doug Love.

Best wishes go out to George Smith, who will retire at the end of this year as our city's Director of Public Works. Good luck to you.

And finally to all our neighbors, a very special holiday greeting.

Siegfried E. Pels

Siegfried E. "Doc" Pels died on Friday, December 14 at the Greenbelt Nursing Center.

Pels was a pioneer resident of Greenbelt with his late wife, Teresa. He was born of immigrant parents in New York and studied optometry at the Massachusetts School of Optometry before coming to the Washington, D.C. area. He married Teresa Halloran in October of 1936 and they lived in Washington until a unit was ready for them in Greenbelt at 21-F Parkway.

In the early days "Doc" worked at the Navy Yard making lenses for submarine periscopes; after the war, he opened his practice of optometry in Washington, D.C. He retired in 1968.

During his practice of optometry "Doc" examined eyes and prescribed glasses for faculty and staff members at Catholic University, people from the religious houses of study in the vicinity, people from the B&O Railroad at Ivy City, and, of course, his friends and neighbors from Greenbelt. "Doc" was an associate of Melart Jewelers at 4th and Rhode Island Avenue, N.E., in Washington (where he had his office for many years) and also bowled in the Jewelers League in Washington for many years.

He was a regular fan at the ball games at Braden Field (it didn't matter to him which league or team was playing) and a spectator at the Greenbelt Sports Center (now the Post Office), especially for the archery league. He was very excited the year someone won a medal at the Olympics in the archery competition and he knew the person from the Sports Center. He was as excited as if he had won the medal himself.

He was a loyal member of the "Center Bums" in Greenbelt, sitting on the benches and talking about the way things are now and how they were in "the good old days." He used to organize an annual fishing party for Wachapreague, Va., and would go on other fishing trips with friends. He was a regular (if not daily, due to weather conditions) visitor to the Co-op food store and the Post Office in Greenbelt Center, now known as the Roosevelt Center.

He is survived by a daughter, Elizabeth P. Nash of Greenbelt; a son, Philip E. Pels of Alexandria, Va.; a brother, Seymour Pels of Dunwoody, Ga.; a son-in-law, Charles J. Nash; and many devoted friends. The family requests that memorial contributions be made to the Friends of the Greenbelt Museum, c/o Greenbelt City Offices, 25 Crescent Road, Greenbelt, Md. 20770; the Greenbelt Fire Department, Pumper Fund, GVFD&RS, Inc., Greenbelt, Md. 20770; The American Lung Association of Md., Inc., Crofton Professional Center, Crofton, Md. 21114 or any other charity of choice.

Burial services were held at St. Hugh's Church on Wednesday, December 19. Interment was at Gate of Heaven Cemetery.

Fun Activities at Goddard

Martin Haker, Jr.

Martin James Haker, Jr., 43, of Chesapeake Beach, Md., died suddenly of heart failure at Wilmington Medical Center in Delaware. He was attending classes at Delaware Tech, specializing in hotel management. He had been a salesman selling real estate and representing advertising companies.

He was a member of Greenbelt American Legion Post 136 and the Coast Guard Combat Veteran's Association. In his youth, he was active in cub scouts, boy scouts, and the Greenbelt swim team.

Haker enlisted in the Coast Guard in 1966, serving at search and rescue stations on the east coast and in Vietnam. He graduated from Prince Georges Community College.

Survivors include his daughter, Lisa Rose Haker of Frostburg; his parents, Martin and Frances Haker of Greenbelt; three sisters, Suzanne Santora of Waldorf; Kathleen Scott of Chesapeake Station; and Mary Virginia Haker of Greenbelt.

Prayers and American Legion services were held at Gasch's Funeral Home on Tuesday, December 11. Mass of Christian Burial was offered at St. Hugh's Church on Wednesday, December 12, with interment at Maryland Veteran's Cemetery in Cheltenham with military services by the Coast Guard.

Helen Siehl

A long-time resident of Greenbelt, Mrs. Helen Siehl, died December 12 at Prince Georges Hospital after a long illness.

She and her husband, Robert B. Siehl moved to the 3 Court of Research Road in September of 1948. In 1953 they moved to the 10 Court of Plateau Place where they have resided ever since.

Mrs. Siehl is survived by her husband Robert, her eight children: Betty J. Eichholz of California, Helen Sharpes of West Virginia, William Andrew of Florida, Martha Hall of Bowie, her sons Arthur and Donald of Berwyn Heights, and daughters Patty Lauer and Kathryn Donbulian, both of Greenbelt; and a brother Robert C. Andrews of Seattle, Wash. She is also survived by 19 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

Services were held on December 17 at Gasch's Funeral Home in Hyattsville, and interment was at the Cheltenham Veterans Cemetery.

Businesses Can Get Help From County on Recycling

The Prince Georges County Office of Recycling has begun conducting waste audits for local businesses to demonstrate the potential of recycling commercial waste. The waste audits are performed by the County's Department of Environmental Resources' recycling specialists who actually sort through a company's garbage to determine which materials are recyclable.

General recommendations to local businesses after the completion of the waste audits include what materials are recyclable, how various materials can be recycled and methods for overall source reduction.

Requests for commercial waste audits or further information on the commercial recycling program can be directed to the Prince Georges County Department of Environmental Resources' Office of Recycling at 925-5963.

Sublease Administration Fees Discussed by GHI Board

by Mary Moien

An uncharacteristically brief meeting of the board of directors of Greenbelt Homes, Inc. was held on December 6. The session dealt with several member issues, particularly the matter of sublease administration fees, as well as discussions on transferring money from the replacement reserves and new ideas for advertising of board meetings.

Sublease Fees
The major topic of the evening concerned sublease administration fees. The corporation currently is involved in fewer than 10 subleases, as the corporation allows a member to sublease a home only under unusual circumstances. Captain P. J. Seigel has arranged for GHI to administer the sublease of her home while she is on assignment in Europe. She spoke before the board on her request that they review the policy of charging a 10% sublease administration fee on all subleases. Capt. Seigel stated that she feels that her tenants will pay their rent to GHI on time, will not cause problems, and will not require GHI to assist them in obtaining repairs for the house (other than those already covered by her maintenance agreement). In addition, she stated that with increasingly high rents, administrative fees are higher than needed.

Management agreed that given no problems with a rental property, the 10% fee is generous, but indicated that the fee is fair on the average. The fee was set approximately 10 years ago and was set at a percentage of the rent so that the board would not have to vote to change a specific fee on a yearly basis when costs rose. A lengthy discussion among the board members followed, touching on a number of topics, including the privilege, not right, of a member to sublease; the possible inequity of a percent fee when rentals vary greatly in price; and the need to reopen a general discussion of sublease administrative fees.

The board proposed several motions directed specifically to the plight of Capt. Seigel, including a waiver of fees and a set fee of $100 per year, versus the $80 per month that she would be paying. These motions all failed. A motion then passed to study the entire problem of sublease administrative fees early in the new year. If the board decides that the fees are too high, all members who sublease will receive a reduction in their fees.

Other Topics

A member on Gardenway requested an exemption to the height limit for a fence. The fence was in place in 1981 when the home was purchased. In addition, the neighbors do not object to the fence. Some members felt that granting an exemption just perpetuates problems found in the cooperative. Notwithstanding, the motion to grant an exception passed with the understanding that the exception expire when the fencing material requires replacement.

Last December when contracts were developed for storm sewer replacement, it was understood that sufficient funds might not be available in the 1990 budget. It was decided to wait until the end of the year to see if funds could be found elsewhere in the budget. Because this possibility did not work out the board passed a motion transferring $43,000 from the replacement reserve fund to cover the balance of the cost of the sewer work.

Advertisement of meetings was also discussed. Board meetings are currently advertised in the News Review and also on the Greenbelt cable channel. The board discussed ways to encourage attendance and participation by better advertisement of dates and agendas. The idea of using signs such as for voting was one new area proposed. Larger ads in the News Review as well as a standard page location for the ad were suggested. No final decisions were made.

INDIAN CREEK

to express its support.

Mayor pro tem Thomas X. White noted that the Washington Area Council of Governments (COG) is focusing on the Anacostia River, of which Beaver Dam Creek and Indian Creek are major tributaries. Restoration of the stream valley would have beneficial impacts on the Anacostia and, eventually, the Chesapeake Bay. It may be possible, White said, to obtain COG funding for restoration and control measures.

Council member Edward Putens said he was very impressed with the efforts of Meetre and Roberts and supportive of the concept, having often visited the park with his family. Let's not wait for the county to hold hearings, he urged, but rather move now to get Greenbelters' perspective.

The question of providing an unsuitable habitat for deer displaced by construction and enclosure of the Metro station and rail yard was raised by council member Antoinette Bram. Deer and humans should not cohabitate, she said, citing the role of deer in transmission of Lyme disease. Consideration must be given to the effects of the park on the deer population, Bram urged.

Putens moved, and council agreed unanimously, to schedule a presentation by Meetre and Roberts to the city's Park and Recreation Advisory Board (PRAB) and the Advisory Planning Board (APB). The Boards' insights should be gleaned for Greenbelt's input to the transit district overlay zone planning.

In the early days of Greenbelt, the theater played a major role in the cultural life of the community. Besides showing movies, the house was used for dances and by the Greenbelt Players, a troupe of local actors formed in 1938. Interestingly, the last tenants for the theater were the Greenbelt Arts Center, which with its own troupe (the Greenbelt Players) and others presented live theater, dance and music events for 10 years before the community-based group lost the lease to the building in June, 1988.

by Christina O'Boyle

He follows the same route every year. After passing over the endless chain of stores on Route 1, he heads for the darkness of the BARC farmlands. Once over the train tracks on Sunnyside Avenue, he can smell the woods and meadows surrounding his favorite town in Maryland. He zigzags across the fields to find Research Road, his favorite entrance to GHI because it is not a grand one—not landscaped like the others. It has few street lights, no red lights, hotels, shopping centers or office buildings. That is why he uses it: it catches everyone unaware.

About to make his customary stops, a flood of curiosity leads him on. He travels Ridge Road to Lastner Lane and down it to the lovely stillness of the lake at Buddy Attick Park. He wants to go exploring before getting down to work. "There is no time, but perhaps a quick look at Roosevelt Center and I'll be on my way." There he sees new sidewalks, curbs and trees, a refurbished theater, a pizza store. "Will business boom now?" He smiles with certainty at the thought. Then something catches his eye: "So, a second pool for year-round swimming. I may come back for my vacation!"

Winding along familiar streets he spots new homes and office buildings nestled beside the B-W Parkway. Just beyond them he notices a hotel under construction at the Kenilworth overpass. Because Springhill Lake Apartments are right in front of him, he pauses knowing it is time to get busy. But with so much to see, he makes a U-turn over the National Park and follows Greenbelt Road to Greenbriar and the Greenway Shopping Center across from it. "Those three skyscrapers certainly dwarf everything else out here." Then immediately he is distracted by the growth along Hanover Parkway and behind it — so many more houses! Greenbelt is going to take much, much more time he realizes.

So he pulls the reins tightly, directing the sleigh higher to get a long view of the shining, proud city before landing on the roof of his first stop in Greenbelt on Christmas Eve.

GOOD RIDDANCE TO JUNK MAIL

Anyone interested in reducing the amount of junk mail they receive, may write to the following address and request a "Name Removal Form": Mail Preference Service, Direct Marketing Association, Inc., 11 West 42nd Street, P.O. Box 3861, New York, NY 10163-3861. The Association may also be contacted at 212-689-4977.

According to the Association, Mail Preference will, after a few months, reduce the amount of direct mail from national advertisers. A spokesperson for the Association explained that catalogs, sweepstakes and magazines would be affected but political, religious, or charitable mail would not. A request for name removal will be honored for a period of five years, after which it must be renewed.

Holiday Greetings

"This truly is an occasion for rejoicing, because, in Greenbelt, perhaps more significantly than in any other community in the United States, we are welded together with a common bond and a common purpose..." So began the editorial of the fifth issue of The Cooperator, as our first families celebrated the first holiday season in Greenbelt.

As we begin the holiday season in 1990, are we still welded together with a common bond and a common purpose? We think so. In recent years by working together, Greenbelt's residents, elected officials, employees and volunteers have obtained additional green space, quality development in Greenbelt East and in the Golden Triangle, renovated public buildings and outdoor pool, a museum, new police facility, and soon, an indoor pool, renovated shopping mall, Schrom Hills Park and a community center. Each of these gives us another reason to rejoice.

We are still welded together with a common bond and a common purpose — working together so that Greenbelt remains a special place. We — the elected officials, employees and volunteer members of the city government — wish you, the citizens of Greenbelt, a warm, joyful holiday and a peaceful new year.
